BRASS – FLARE FITTINGS

Flare Tube Fittings

Flared tube fitting connections are made by slipping the nut over the tubing, and then flaring the end of the tubing by using a flaring tool (pg. 39). The nut is pulled up with a wrench, and a tight joint is obtained; the line can then be connected and disconnected frequently without affecting the joint. These fittings can be used on low, medium and high pressure lines under the most adverse conditions. Flare fittings are also used with plastic or beverage tubing using Barb x female flare swivels (pg. 16), unions, tees and elbows. All flare tube fittings are listed and sold without the nuts.

BRASS – COMPRESSION FITTINGS

Ball Sleeve Tube Fitting (Compression)

This type of fitting was designed as an easy and economical method of connecting tubing with the assurance of a tight joint that can be rapidly connected and disconnected without leakage. By using ball sleeve tube fittings, soldering and flaring are eliminated. Ball sleeve tube fitting connections are made by slipping the nut and sleeve over the tubing and inserting the tubing into the fitting. The nut is then tightened onto the fitting and the action of turning the nut compresses the inner sleeve and makes the sleeve a component part of the tubing. The angle of the compressed sleeve makes a leak proof joint between the tubing and fitting. Compression fittings are sold complete with nuts and sleeves. When using plastic tube, make sure to use a plastic sleeve (delrin), inner sleeve, and tube support (insert).

ANGLE STOPS

ANGLE STOPS COME IN THREE MAIN VARIETIES—COMPRESSION, FPT, & PEX INLETS. “LI” INDICATES FPT, AND “LN” INDICATES A COMPRESSION INLET. IT CAN BE FRUSTATING FINDING AN OLD, LEAKY ANGLE STOP AT A NEW INSTALLATION. IF YOU’RE GOING TO REPLACE IT, CONSIDER UPGRADING TO A DUAL STOP AS OPPOSED TO A SELF-TAPPING VALVE OR TEE. THIS WILL ALLOW YOU TO REPLACE THE SUPPLY LINE TO THE FAUCET AND GIVE YOURSELF AN EXTRA WATER LINE.
